BRITAIN NOT TO PROTEST ON SUICIDE

Satisfied Suicide of Maid Not Result Of Third Degree

BULLETIN

Flemington, N. J., June 29—(AP)—Frank J. Wilson, a federal operative who investigated the activities of John Hughes Curtis, on trial for hindering capture of the Lindbergh baby kidnapers, testified today that he had no way of knowing that Curtis knew the whereabouts of the kidnapers.

BULLETIN

London, June 29—(AP)—There will be no representations by the British government to the United States in connection with the death of Violet Sharpe, Parliament was informed today.

The Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs said the Consul General at New York had reported on the death of the servant girl who committed suicide in the Morrow home at Englewood, N. J., after questioning by police in connection with the Lindbergh kidnaping.

Having regard to all the circumstances in this case," he said, "there would appear to be no grounds which would warrant representations to the United States government."

The Consul-General is satisfied there was no physical violence or "so-called third degree methods" employed by the police in their questioning, he said, and that the girl was not questioned "under conditions of severe physical strain induced by lack of sleep or want of food."

CURTIS TRIAL PROCEEDS

Flemington, N. J., June 29—(AP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh was described in testimony today as having at one time tried to "leap into a stormy sea to swim to a boat on which he believed his kidnapped baby was held for ransom."

William Edward Haskell, New York newspaper executive, was on the stand at beginning of the third day's session of the trial of John Hughes Curtis for hindering capture of the kidnapers when this testimony came out.

"What did Curtis say of Col. Lindbergh's efforts to swim to the alleged kidnappers?" Prosecutor Anthony M. Hauck asked Haskell. "He said they sighted a boat but high seas prevented getting close," Haskell replied. "He said they had to restrain Col. Lindbergh from jumping overboard to swim to the other ship."

Just before court convened Prosecutor Anthony Hauck said he considered Lindbergh's testimony yesterday that he believed Curtis had never been in contact with the kidnapers of the Lindbergh baby was offset by ensuing testimony of Edmund B. Bruce of Elmira.

Hauck had stated in his opening address to the jury that the prosecution would prove that Curtis had been in negotiation with the kidnapers and then by his formal confession that all his activities had been a hoax had hindered capture of the criminals. Curtis has since repudiated that confession.

May Have Hurt Case
In some quarters it seemed that the Lindbergh testimony, given under cross examination jeopardized the state's case, in that it expressed an opinion in direct opposition to what the state is trying to prove. Lindbergh was followed on the stand by Bruce, an old friend of Curtis and his associate in activities incident to the alleged negotiations with the kidnapers. Bruce expressed the opinion that Curtis had been in touch with the real kidnapers and that while he considered Curtis "a liar" he believed him not guilty as charged in the present indictment.

Haskell, who went on the stand when court adjourned last night, is assistant to the president of the New York Tribune Inc., publishers of the New York Herald-Tribune. Yesterday he told of Curtis' offer to him to sell the story of his negotiations. No agreement was reached pending return of the child to its parents.

Reaffirmed Contact
Under cross examination by Lloyd Fisher, chief defense counsel, Haskell said he had visited Curtis in jail after he had confessed that all his negotiations were a hoax, and Curtis at that time emphatically reaffirmed that he had been in touch with the actual kidnapers. "I was puzzled," Haskell testified, "so I asked him 'now that it is all over tell me, were you ever in touch with the kidnapers?'"

"He most indignantly said 'Yes, the story is still to be told. It's in Norfolk.'"

Haskell said Curtis told him he had confessed that all his stories of negotiations with the kidnapers were a hoax in order "to get some sleep."

AGREEMENT ON RELIEF ACT IS BELIEVED HEAR

Congressional Conferees May Decide Differences Today

Washington, June 29—(AP)—Congressional conferees near an agreement today on the controversial public works program of the $2,300,000,000 unemployment relief bill.

No formal agreement was reached, but conferees said discussion centered about the $500,000,000 public works program of the Senate bill and that an understanding was not far off.

President Hoover has denounced this section of the bill in terms so harsh that they were interpreted by some as foreshadowing a veto. Speaker Garner predicted at his press conference that the conferees on the bill would reach an agreement late this afternoon or tomorrow.

He said that with a Democratic house, Republican Senate and a Republican President, the legislation must be a compromise with concessions from both sides.

Veto Would Stand
Asked whether he thought Congress should remain in session until President Hoover had signed the relief measure, the Speaker said he saw little chance of passing any legislation over a veto.

Treasury experts have proposed to the conferees, however, elimination of the bond issue proposal, so that the public works in the measure could be covered by the usual method of Treasury financing instead of a special issue of obligations.

Whether this would make the bill acceptable to the President was not revealed to the conferees, but the Senate group was reluctant to cut out of their measure this feature which they have contended would prevent the program from being a burden on the Treasury.

Max Aid Industry
The conferees agreed there was a tentative agreement to accept the Senate's proposal for expanding the borrowing power of the Reconstruction Corporation by $1,500,000,000 for construction loans.

Senate conferees have agreed to the broad proposition of liberalizing their bill to allow loans to private industry under strict regulation but the exact terms of a compromise on this feature have not been worked out.

The administration has sought power to make loans to private industry and this was allowed under the House bill, but the Senate measure strictly limited loans to self-liquidating projects of a public character.

Banners Of New York's Governor Flutter High In Stadium

By BYRON PRICE

Associated Press Staff Writer

Chicago, June 29—(AP)—The banners of Franklin D. Roosevelt fluttered high above the Democratic national convention today as it came to grips with the problem of what to do about prohibition—last of its major issues except the nomination itself.

Encouraged almost to the point of jubilation by yesterday's victories on an emotion-swept convention floor, and a night of missionary work among the doubtful, the Roosevelt leaders marshalled their forces into the stadium bent on writing a repeal submission plank into the platform and nominating their leader by tomorrow.

Difficulty remained, however, ahead of both of these projects. The minority band of anti-Roosevelt delegates, split among nearly a dozen candidates, fought desperately, backs to the wall; and a plan to commit the democracy outright to repeal of the dry amendment raised a challenging barrier in the pathway of the Roosevelt-sponsored platform.

Have Own Difficulty
A difficulty of their own faced the Roosevelt men also in failure of the platform-drafting subcommittee to agree up to the last minute, of the exact wording of the majority prohibition plank. This led to suspicion on the part of the out-right wets that the Roosevelt forces might yet seek to delay action on prohibition, though not on the whole platform, until after the nomination had taken place. They voiced this in committee, apparently believing some Roosevelt leaders were not anxious to meet a floor attack by Alfred E. Smith, the 1928 standard bearer.

It was certain, in any case, that the party would go at least one step further than the Republicans had gone in prohibition.

The Republican convention divided over a proposal to submit a revision plan, and a proposal to submit a flat repealer; and the former won. Today, the choice submission was between a repeal and a declaration that the party would not merely submit repeal, but would seek its ratification.

No Recommendation
Although Governor Roosevelt himself is on record for repeal, his managers have not wanted the convention to go that far. They have taken account of the prohibition sentiment among many Roosevelt delegates, particularly from the south. Their plank provides only that repeal be recommended to the states with no recommendation whether they shall take it or leave it.

Those who want to take the further step of affirmatively advocating repeal have developed a strength surprising not only to the Roosevelt opposition but to themselves. From more than a score of states they drew support in today's contest, and some of it came from delegates pledged to Roosevelt. They predicted that if they did not actually win, they would come very near it.

To Senator David I. Walsh of Massachusetts, pledged to the candidacy of Al Smith, fell the leadership for the repealers in the battle of words and votes at today's convention session.

Heading the defense of the submission plank was a Roosevelt supporter, Nebraska's Gilbert Hitchcock of the platform committee and one-time Democratic leader of the Senate.

Farm Plank A Nut
On a lesser scale, disagreement developed at a morning session of the committee today over the farm plank, but it was completely overshadowed by the prohibition dispute.

On the question of the nomination the rise of confidence among the Roosevelt followers was immense. Yesterday, with several delegations in rebellion because of the change of front on the two-thirds rule, they went into the convention plainly worried. Today they insisted it was all over but the shouting.

Partial, but not complete, justification for such a claim appeared on the surface of the seething whirl-pool of convention developments.

Most of the dissenting delegations had come back into line, voting solidly to help pile up majorities ranging around 100 on the three test votes of yesterday. On these votes, too, the Reed-pledged Missouri delegation broke up, gave most of its support to the Roosevelt camp. During the night reports spread about that the favorite son blocs of Ohio and Texas were listening to the call of the bandwagon, and that Tammany was about ready to toss its formidable budget of votes into the lap of the Governor.

Moral Effect Felt
The moral effect of the Roosevelt victory was undoubtedly being felt all along the line. Three times the convention clerks called the roll, and three times the New Yorker's managers gave visible

TIME FOR BIDS ON CITY BONDS WAS EXTENDED

Three Concerns Interested In Bonds To Buy Water Works

Three financial concerns have made inquiry into the possible purchase of the city of Dixon of the Dixon Water Works company, Mayor Dixon informed the members of the city council last evening.

Two have mailed proposals for the city's bonds and a third communicated with the mayor yesterday by long distance telephone, asking for an extension of time in which to consult engineers reports and conduct a survey before submitting a proposal.

The mayor stated that with the approval of the commission the date for the opening of bids for the proposed bonds would be extended until Wednesday afternoon of next week, at 2 o'clock.

Amos Busworth, Mrs. Lucile M. Warner, Miss Caroline Pratt were reappointed to serve as members of the Dixon public library board, their terms having expired.

A petition bearing the signatures of several property owners in the west end of the city was submitted to the council, asking that a ball park or recreation field be provided in that section of the city for the children. The request was referred to the Park Board for consideration.

Three applications for soft drink licenses were granted.

Was Brief Session
The council session was of brief duration and the final matter of business, was the filing by the mayor of his annual Fourth of July proclamation which is as follows:

"On Monday, July 4, this Nation will celebrate the 156th anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence. All Americans appreciating the sacrifices of our forefathers, should pause in our everyday labors and devote that day to commemorating the courage and bravery of the men who founded this government and gave to the people the right to pursue happiness and enjoy liberty."

"Therefore, all citizens of Dixon are urged on July 4 to display the American flag and suitably decorate their properties, to suspend business activities as far as convenient and welcome to our city the many visitors who are to come here from the surrounding territory and to assist in celebrating the holiday in an appropriate manner."

COMMANDER OF STATE U. S. W. V. IS CRITICISED

Administration Of Soldiers' Home Also Attacked

Belleville, Ill., June 29—(AP)—Sessions of the twenty-ninth annual meeting of the United Spanish War Veterans, which concludes here today, were enlivened by controversies in which certain expenditures of the Departmental Commander and the administration of the Soldiers' Home at Quincy were criticized.

In the Adjutant's report it was pointed out that $1600 was expended by the Departmental Commander, John R. Mayeskie of Chicago, for traveling expenses, and in the discussion which followed, it was implied that the sum was too much.

Mayeskie, in defending his record, stated his expenditures have been on a par with or even less than that of his predecessor.

"I have just been criticized for the expenditure of money," he said, "but have not received credit for the numerous economies I have effected."

A. W. F. Siebel of Chicago, a Past Commander, recommended that a definite amount be set aside for the Commander's expenses.

Then George H. Abbott, also of Chicago, declared his work as Inspector "had been hampered by certain rulings of the Departmental Commander."

With reference to the Soldiers' Home at Quincy, Abbott said he was insulted and ordered out of the home on the order of the Commander.

"The members of this home are afraid to criticize and their morale is completely broken down," Abbott stated.

Siebel suggested that the Departmental Inspector went beyond his duties in inspecting the Quincy home and said "he comes to conclusions which I know are not correct."

OFFICIALS TO INSIST MOTEN BE RETURNED

Suggestion Of The State Dept. Regarding Negro Rejected

Negotiations to secure the return of Nathaniel Moten, St. Louis, Mo. Negro to Illinois, where he will return to the jurisdiction of the Lee county courts, are being continued by State's Attorney Mark C. Keller and County Judge William L. Leach and Assistant Attorney General J. J. Neiger of Springfield.

Moten was released from the East Moline state hospital, where he was confined as an insane patient, and turned over to St. Louis, Mo., county officials following an investigation by the department agent of the Illinois Department of Public Welfare. Notice of Moten's being released as unsecured from the state institution at East Moline was not received by the Lee county officials until he had been turned over to the Missouri authorities.

Following the investigation started by the officials of Lee county, where Moten is charged with complicity in the murder of Eli Davis, deputy sheriff at the Dixon state hospital, and an employee of the Welfare Department, St. Louis county authorities expressed a willingness to return Moten to the jurisdiction of the local courts at the expense of the Illinois department. This investigation was directed to the Welfare Department and has now reached the office of the Attorney General of Illinois.

Suggestion Rejected
State's Attorney Keller this morning announced that the Department of Public Welfare had suggested Moten's being sent to the institution for criminally insane at Chester, Ill., but this was opposed by both State's Attorney Keller and Judge Leach on the grounds that the department would be acting without jurisdiction, because of the fact that Moten has not been tried for the offense with which he stands charged, that of murder, and that his criminal insanity has not been proven in an Illinois court of record.

The Lee county officials are urging the return of Moten to the East Moline state hospital where he was originally committed by Judge Leach in the County Court, to be confined there until such time as a cure of his mental condition is effected, and then returned to Lee county to be tried on the charge of murder under which he was indicted by a grand jury of this county.

Pick Up Missing Boys At Lyndon
The great adventure of two "Huckleberry Finn's" came to an end just beyond Lyndon. Guy Burt, aged 12 years, of Rockford, was taken into custody as he sought something to eat Monday evening.

His companion, Robert Esterbrook, aged 13 years, also of Rockford, was picked up Tuesday morning. They have been returned home.

Seven rowboats and motorboats were reported missing along the route taken by the youngsters. Their parents were here over Sunday and Monday looking for them.

The boys left Rockford last Wednesday in a boat. At Oregon they were taken into custody by the sheriff for attempting to take fish from a trout line operated by an Oregon fisherman. They were held there several hours. When released they were ordered back to Rockford.

As soon as they had gotten out of sight of Oregon deputies they turned around and headed down stream again. The boys had informed some companions that they were going to go to Tampa, Florida.

SENATOR WALSH PRESIDING AT SECOND MEET

Montana Man Is One Of Strongest Men In The Democratic Party

By RODNEY DUTCHER

NEA Service Writer

Chicago, June 29—Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana one of the great men in the Democratic party, stands today where he stood in June eight years ago, at Madison Square Garden in New York.

Permanent chairman of that 1924 convention, he presided for 103 long ballots, watching his candidate—William Gibbs McAdoo—finally crumble, and watching his party tear itself to pieces and destroy its last chance of making a magnificent achievement in the exposure of Teapot Dome.

Will history repeat itself for Tom Walsh as he gavel and rules from this stadium platform—grim for order and so scrupulously fair as to remove all thought that he can or will be anything but powerful in his candidate of today—Franklin D. Roosevelt—also becoming the victim of the two-thirds rule and a long, bitter deadlock?

That thought must have run through the old warrior's mind today, and he may well have realized, too, that in this year his party chances of victory seem far brighter than in the past sixteen years.

In the bitter fight for the permanent chairmanship which was won when the Roosevelt forces defeated Joseph R. Shaw, no word, publicly or privately, was spoken against the man Tom Walsh. John W. Davis and the other Shawe speakers all made sincerely gracious bows in his direction.

Eight years ago Walsh was introduced as the "greatest investigator in the history of the United States" and no one since has challenged him for the honor.

In his time, he has led single-handed struggles against some of the most powerful interests in the world—the Anaconda copper company, the oil magnates and grafters, the aluminum trust and the great public utilities. No one recalls that he ever lost such a fight.

He was born in Wisconsin and practiced law in South Dakota before he established himself in Oregon. He won cases against the copper company, and it was supposed that he could never attain high public office, but he became a powerful fighting force among the Montana democrats and received both a popular and unanimous legislative endorsement in 1913. He has served continuously in Washington ever since. Although he has always been a dry, and was opposed by a wet in the 1930 election, Democratic National Chairman John J. Raskob, a fanatical wet, personally contributed $5,000 to Walsh's campaign that year.

Walsh was the first choice of McAdoo for the presidential nomination after McAdoo realized that he himself was beaten in 1924. Later John W. Davis, personally, but vainly begged Walsh to accept the vice-presidential nomination. Walsh said he would refuse if nominated.

In 1928, Walsh was again McAdoo's candidate for president, but bowed early to the inevitable Alfred E. Smith.

White-headed and wearing a cocky bristling moustache at the age of 73, Walsh today retains

Platform Committee Hits Snag; Delayed Day's Meet

BULLETIN

Chicago, June 29—(AP)—The Democratic platform committee today voted to commit the party in favor of prohibition repeal. The vote was 35 to 17.

By BYRON PRICE

Associated Press Staff Writer

Chicago Stadium, June 29—(AP)—Its Platform committee deadlocked over the prohibition plank, the Democratic national convention killed time with odds and ends today, listened to an hour and a half of stump speeches and wisecracking and then recessed until 7 o'clock tonight.

The session which was to have begun at noon, transacted no business. It did not actually come to order until nearly 1 o'clock and then only for a moment, to stand in recess while a long succession of spellbinders and professional entertainers did their stuff for the waiting and restless delegates.

An hour and a half later, Chairman Walsh again called the convention back officially into session, but only long enough to announce that the Platform committee could not report for at least several hours.

Recess Cheered
He suggested a recess and the delegates cheered their assent.

Tonight the prohibition dispute is to have right of way on the convention floor, with those who want to commit the party to repeal seeking defeat of the committee report, which is expected to favor submission of a repeal plank, but without recommendation whether the states should accept the repeal amendment or not.

The postponement means that most of the nominating speeches for President, at least, will be delayed until tomorrow, and no ballots taken until late tomorrow afternoon at the earliest.

Frank Scofield the Traylor campaign manager, charged in a new statement he dictated to newspapermen today that an unidentified man whom he said described himself as a Roosevelt worker had offered him $10,000 to sign a statement withdrawing Traylor's name.

Scofield called a group of newspapermen into his office and dictated the following:

"Last night about midnight a man I never saw before approached me and said, 'Are you Scofield?' I told him I was and he said 'Can I have a private conference with you?' We went into a corner of my office. He held up a statement for me to sign. When I asked him to make it he said, 'No, just read it.' The statement bore my name as manager of the Traylor campaign and read as follows:

"I have just received a wire from Melvin A. Traylor thanking me for my activities in his behalf and requesting me to withdraw his name from the race."

"I denied that the statement was true and refused to sign it. He replied, 'Don't be foolish. The anti-Roosevelt machine is going to crack. You might as well be the beneficiary.'"

Said He Was Serious
"I told him I had nothing to do with the Illinois delegation and could not release them if I wanted to. He said, 'Listen, I'm serious. This means $10,000 to you and a million votes for Roosevelt, if he loses over on the first ballot, and this statement from you will do the job.'"

"I promptly told him I would not be a party to such a transaction. He said he was sorry if he had offended me. I told him to take it anyway he wished. He got up and said 'think it over. I will be back.' I told him in forceful language not to bother because I would not see him. He said he was doing publicity work for the Roosevelt organization. I had never seen him anywhere before."

Scofield said he did not ask the man his name.

Disavow Connection
Roosevelt headquarters disavowed any connection with the attempt.

Immediately after Scofield had dictated his statement to newspapermen, I. B. Dunlap, Governor Roosevelt's personal representative, issued the following statement:

"No one has any authority in any manner, shape or form to make any such up-or-Roosevelt suggestion. That is not the Roosevelt way of doing business. Melvin Traylor would not accept an insult such as suggested."

James A. Farley, Roosevelt campaign manager called it a "ridiculous story." He said no one doing publicity work for the Governor has any authority "to do anything like this" and no one connected with the Roosevelt staff has done any such thing.

Farley said that many delegates have favored other candidates had

MANY CHARTER MEMBERS OF LEE CO. BUREAU ALIVE

Local Farmers' Organization Has Done Much For County

The history of the Lee County Farm Bureau is short enough that many of its charter members are still active in the work of the organization.

Most of the present members can remember when the organization was started. It began operating in 1915. Since that time it has continued to increase its service both locally and through the Illinois Agricultural Association until the present time.

Among those who helped organize the Lee County Farm Bureau are S. L. Shaw, Herbert Conner, Amos Bosworth, Howard G. Kelgwin, W. A. Green, T. E. Hillison and J. C. Miller.

Local Farmers' Organization Has Done Much For County

The Farm Bureau movement, which is now spread over the entire country and has the support of thousands of farmers in nearly every state, has its beginning here in Illinois in DeKalb and Kane counties 20 years ago.

The organizations, known first as soil and crop improvement associations, were started in these counties June 1, 1912. W. G. Eckhardt, first county adviser in DeKalb county, and John S. Collier of Kane county, oldest adviser in point of service began work on the same day.

The DeKalb County Soil Improvement Association had been organized on March 27, 1912, and the Kane County Soil and Crop Improvement Association followed on April 20, the same year.

These were the first counties in the United States to build a definite farmers' organization to carry on a full program of production and marketing service for farmers.

Four years later the Illinois Agricultural Association was formed as a federation of county Farm Bureaus, several others having been organized in the meantime.

Tazewell in '13
On June 1 1913 Tazewell county organized and adopted the name "Tazewell County Farm Bureau."

This is said to be the first time the title was used in the United States. In 1913 eight new counties began Farm Bureau work bringing the total of organized counties to 10.

A year later the Smith-Lever act passed appropriating money for county agents. In that year five more counties organized bringing the total to 15. By 1919, 70 county Farm Bureaus had been organized, and by 1921 there were 95 counties in which there were active Farm Bureau organizations operating.

The Illinois Agricultural Association served first as a medium for bringing Farm Bureau leaders together to discuss state and national problems. Its early efforts were confined largely to representing Illinois Agriculture in the state legislature.

But in 1919 the founders of the Farm Bureau visualized the possibilities of a strong, well-financed, militant organization to represent farmers in questions too large for individuals and county units to handle. And as the Illinois Agricultural Association was reorganized on its present basis with $4.50 annual membership fee and a staff of men carefully selected to carry out the adopted program.

Given First Attention
Legislation, taxation, representation before state-making bodies, and organized buying of agricultural limestone and ground rock phosphate were given chief attention.

Next cooperative marketing with departments for each commodity were set up so as to help producers retain control of their product until it reaches the processor or consumer.

The Producer cooperative livestock marketing associations, the milk and produce cooperatives now operating in almost every market center in and adjoining Illinois, the Illinois Fruit Growers Exchange, the Egyptian Seed Growers Exchange, the wool pool and now the Illinois Grain Corporation were outgrowths of that early movement to give the farmer a voice in the sale of his products.

Early in 1924 a new service was added when the present Illinois Agricultural Auditing Association was organized then as the Illinois Agricultural Cooperatives Association. The primary object of this service was to provide an adequate and competent audit and accounting service for cooperative associations and agricultural organizations.

Later Services
The Farmers Mutual Reinsurance Co. was launched a year later on Nov. 21, 1925 to provide fire, hail, windstorm insurance and reinsurance for local farm mutuals.

Next came the Illinois Agricultural Mutual Ins. Co. in 1926, the Illinois Farm Supply Co. in 1927, and the Country Life Ins. Co. in 1929. Throughout this period were organized many cooperatives about market centers and in rural communities throughout the state.

Ten years ago at the 10th Anniversary Celebration in DeKalb County, Davenport, then dean of the State College of Agriculture, wrote of this celebration: "Illinois farm people from every corner of the great commonwealth, from the rolling hills, the fertile bottoms, and the sweeping prairies, commemorate the organization of the first Farm Bureau in Illinois. They gathered to celebrate the achievement of 10 years and to look forward to the great promise that lies ahead—a promise of a profitable and permanent agriculture and a successful and satisfactory farm life."

So on July 4 will members of the Farm Bureau gather in every county, mindful of the fear and paralysis that for the present grips the nation; conscious of the greed and exploitation largely responsible for the conditions of the country, but steadfast in support of organized effort, and looking ahead to a more successful and satisfactory farm life.

Farmers in Lee County during the past 17 years have had a voice in farm legislation at Springfield through the Illinois Agricultural Association which has had its legislative committee on the job constantly since 1916.

Members of the general assembly pay little attention to the requests of individual farmers, but when a committee representing 60,000 of the leading farmers in the express the wishes of the entire group the legislators listen to their request and think twice before they disregard these wishes. A larger membership would add proportionally to the influence of the organization.

More than 40 bills initiated and supported by the I. A. A. are now incorporated in the laws of the state. The organization has also been successful in opposing legislation contrary to agricultural interests. Among these were bills designed to limit cooperative marketing in Illinois, to prevent farmers from vaccinating their own hogs, and a number of bills that would have increased farmers' taxes.

Among the first bills sponsored by the I. A. A. were the pure seed bill, the farm advisers' and a bill to allow farmers compensation for the slaughter of tubercular cattle.

The first law was actually drafted by the legislative committee of the Illinois Agricultural Association, as were a number of other bills.

In every session of the general assembly there have been some bills in which the organization was interested in one way or another, but perhaps the three bills with the greatest significance to farmers were: the state cooperative marketing act of 1923, the gas tax bill, the constitutionality of which is now being tested before the Supreme Court.

The marketing act opened the way for the organization of 100 per cent cooperatives; the gas tax has aided in giving the state an excellent system of paved roads; and the income tax when fully in effect will reduce property taxes and lift part of the unjust burden from the farmer and home owner.

Early attempts being made by enemies of cooperative marketing to pass hostile legislation impressed the I. A. A. with the importance of securing immediate passage of legislation to protect the right of farmers to market their commodities in an orderly way through their own organizations.

In the 1923 session of the general assembly the cooperative marketing act was introduced, and after a bitter fight lasting throughout the session the bill was passed without a single amendment not approved by the I. A. A. This is now recognized as one of the best laws of its kind in the country and has been used as a model by many states.

Early in 1924 the executive committee of the I. A. A. approved the recommendation of the legislative committee that the association, in view of the fact that a tax on gasoline was likely, take steps in advance to secure legislation placing this revenue in lieu of taxes already levied.

In 1925 several gas tax bills were introduced, but the only one that received any favorable consideration was the lieu tax bill drafted by the Illinois Agricultural association.

BRITAIN NOT TO PROTEST ON SUICIDE

was called as the fourth prosecution witness.

Wilson testified that at the Lindbergh home in Hopewell on the night the baby's body was found, Curtis described to him in detail the members of the gang he said he had been dealing with.

He said Curtis named the band as John, Dynamite, Eric, Nils, and Sam Goldberg, "a great big Norwegian Jew."

Curtis also described a woman called Hilda, who he said was Dynamite's wife, and gave smallest details of the alleged kidnap schooner. He gave Hilda's telephone number as Prepost 6630, which he said was at her Long Island home.

Coast Guard Active.
Wilson testified that widespread federal activities were undertaken as a result of Curtis' story. Coast Guard boats and planes were mobilized to scour South Jersey waters for the kidnap craft "Ella Brissson."

Coast Guard activities at Woods Hole were discontinued, and a search for the ship "Nellie," undertaken because of information given by Dr. John F. Condon, was also halted.

Shortly before Wilson was turned over to the defense for cross-examination, court recessed for five minutes and Prosecutor Lannigan said the state would try to conclude its case today.

Opening for the defense, Lloyd Fisher, chief counsel, asked him if it was not true that he had publicly criticized the New Jersey state police for their handling of the case.

Defended Police.
"I believe the state police have handled this case in a very excellent way," he replied.

Wilson testified that Curtis was treated at the Lindbergh home between May 12, when the baby was found dead, and May 18, when Curtis was taken into jail, with "consideration and courtesy." It was during that period that Curtis made his hoax confession, since repudiated.

Before Wilson was excused for the luncheon adjournment, Fisher pressed him for a description of the methods in questioning Curtis.

"You took a statement from him immediately after he arrived at Hopewell, after midnight," he asked. "This referred to midnight of May 12, the day the body was found."

"Yes," Wilson agreed.

"You took the second statement immediately after?"

"Yes."

"Bringing the time to about 4 A. M. of the 13th?"

"Yes. The third statement was taken Saturday or Sunday (May 13 was a Friday) he left after breakfast for South Jersey."

"Did Curtis sleep any that night?"

"I don't know," Wilson replied.

"It knew I didn't."

"Was Curtis' third statement taken immediately he returned Saturday night about 9 o'clock?"

"It began at 9:30."

"How long did this third statement of 29 pages take?"

"Until about midnight and then Mr. Curtis went to a hotel at Trenton."

Fisher's questioning brought out Wilson's testimony that to the best of his knowledge Curtis was constantly accompanied by a police officer at that period.

the vigor of a man 20 years younger. His firm mouth and uncompromising jaw still dominate a fighting face. He has, however, mellowed in the last few years—perhaps under the influence of his very close friend, Mrs. J. Borden Harrison, and he is today more apt to smile.

His personal strength and his great prestige have been born of a fearless honesty, a bulldog determination to plunge through facts, a judicial attitude, and an implacable enmity toward corruption and exploitation. This is the man who rules the destinies of the 1932 Democratic nominating convention.

BEAUTY SEEN IS NEVER LOST—

BEAUTY seen is never lost. God's colors all are fast; The glory of that sunset heaven Into my soul has passed. Wherefore—

Let there be many windows in your soul. That all the glory of the universe May beautify it. . . Tune your ear To all the wordless music of the stars. And to the voice of nature, and your heart Shall be enlarged and gladdened. Unseen hands Shall speed to help you from their peace-crowned heights. And all the forces of the firmament Shall stoop to make you strong. J. M.

Luncheon Is Made Less Problematic

During vacation time, when children are at home all day, luncheon presents a new problem to many mothers. More freedom is permitted than during school days. The lunch hour is not rigid and bed-time varies. With food always available, the temptation to eat between meals is trying. These factors as well as the custom of serving the hearty meal at the end of the day all increase the problem.

Children must have a hearty noon meal. Hours of active play in the fresh air exhaust energy and make nourishing food necessary. But, unless special meals are prepared for children, the noon meal is the light one and the evening meal is the hearty one eaten with the older members of the family. There are certain rules which govern the choice of a child's daily diet and some knowledge of these rules is essential. Every child should have in his diet every day one quart of milk. He should have at least three vegetables, one of which may be potatoes and one of the others raw or green. He should have two fruits, one preferably raw. He should have one serving of meat, fish or eggs. A whole grain cereal, three slices of bread or toast and four glasses of water complete the list of foods necessary to maintain a balanced diet and provide an adequate number of calories.

Vary Ways of Serving Milk. If a child does not want to drink his allotted quart of milk, it may be used over vegetables, in soups and in desserts.

An easy way to plan a child's luncheon menu is to include in it those foods in his daily food requirement that are not served at breakfast or dinner when the family are together. Then, if he is given broiled chop or meat cake at noon he may have the dinner vegetables provided for the rest of the family.

Very often the luncheon dessert can be counted as the "main dish" because a large amount of nourishment can be put into a pudding. This type of dessert is seldom wanted for dinner and adds variety if used for the noon meal.

When the dinner is hearty, a simple luncheon of raw vegetable sandwiches, one hot cooked vegetable, a glass of milk and a nourishing dessert proves most satisfactory for hot noons. A vegetable salad with bread and butter sandwiches can take the place of the sandwiches.

Another point to keep in mind is that luncheon dishes should be easily digested because the meal comes at the hottest time of the day. Insist on fifteen minutes rest before the meal and half an hour of quiet in the shade after the meal.

Desserts for children should not be too sweet. It is far better to make them not sweet enough and let the children add enough sugar to make the pudding palatable when eating it.

Drinks made of milk and eggs are nourishing and easily digested. They are very quickly made and children generally like them. It's a good plan to serve a cup of hot bouillon or a hot vegetable dish when a cold milk and egg drink is served.

Fruit juices also can be combined with eggs to make nourishing and invigorating drinks. When these are used, a hot vegetable soup with sandwiches of lettuce or some other green vegetable rounds out the meal.

Gonnerman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Gonnerman of Nachusa.

The church was beautifully decorated in June roses and palms. The wedding was attended by a large number of relatives and friends who were seated by the ushers, Clifford Jacobs and Louis Saltzman.

Preceding the ceremony Mrs. Louis Saltzman who presided at the organ played a number of nuptial selections and accompanied Miss Margaret Gonnerman who sang sweetly "Because of You" and Cadman's "I Love You Truly." As the bridal party approached the altar Mrs. Saltzman played the Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin. The bride made an attractive picture in her gown of white satin form fitting, with which she wore a long veil of lace and tulle. The lace cap of the veil was fastened to her hair with orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses and baby breath. Miss Wilma Jacobs, a sister was maid of honor and she wore a pretty gown of pink shifon, and a white picture hat, with all accessories in white. She carried pink roses. The bridesmaids, Grace Jacobs and Dorothy Gonnerman were bridesmaids. Miss Jacobs wore a pretty gown in orchid organdie and Miss Gonnerman wore a pretty gown in green organdie. Both wore white picture hats with accessories in white and carried corsage bouquets of pink roses.

After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride to about forty guests. The Jacobs home and the two tables were decorated in pastel colored flowers. The breakfast tables were decorated in flowers, pastel colored tapers and wedding cakes.

After the breakfast Mr. and Mrs. Gonnerman left on a bridal trip through northern Wisconsin. She will wear for traveling an ensemble of rose crepe and a white hat and accessories.

The bride, a popular and capable young woman, is a registered nurse, and was night superintendent for more than a year at the Dixon hospital and since then has been an instructor in nursing. Mr. Gonnerman is a splendid young man, a graduate of Coyne Electrical school of Chicago. On their return from their trip Mr. and Mrs. Gonnerman will make their home on a farm near Nachusa Corners on the Lincoln Highway. Both are popular young people in a large circle of friends and they are receiving the best wishes of friends for happiness.

Silver Wedding Mr. & Mrs. G. Montavon

Mr. and Mrs. George Montavon of West Brooklyn were the victims Sunday, June 26th, of a surprise celebration planned by their children. The occasion was the silver wedding anniversary of the Montavons and about seventy-five guests helped them celebrate the day. At noon a delightful wedding dinner was served by the daughter of the bride and groom, assisted by nine of her cousins. The tables were decorated in pink roses and silver, with a huge wedding cake as center piece. The early part of the afternoon was spent visiting in the lovely flower garden. In the evening a buffet luncheon was served before the guests returned home, after a very enjoyable day.

Mr. and Mrs. Montavon received many lovely remembrances in token of their twenty-five years of married life with congratulations and many good wishes for continued happiness for the couple.

Miss Poisel Bride Of Maurice Spangler

At 10 o'clock this morning at the parsonage to St. Patrick's Catholic church a simple yet very pretty wedding took place, with Reverend Father Nicholas Thiry officiating at the wedding of Miss Lillian Poisel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Poisel of Dixon and Maurice Spangler, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Spangler of Nachusa. The ceremony was witnessed by the immediate relatives of the young couple.

The bride was simply yet beautifully gowned in white crepe de chine, wearing a white hat. She carried an arm bouquet of bridal roses and baby breath. She was attended by her sister, Miss Eunice Poisel, who wore a pretty gown of pink crepe de chine. The brides-

Has Fine Position At Waldorf-Astoria

Mrs. Rebekah Hufcut has won laurels for her sex by being made head of the new all-American cooking department in the kitchen of the new Waldorf-Astoria. She is the first woman to be given such an important position in a big New York hotel.

Increasing numbers of guests, both American and foreign, selecting American dishes in preference to the rich French ones, testify to Mrs. Hufcut's success. Fresh rhubarb pie, strawberry shortcake, Boston baked bean, good old home made lamb stew and chicken noodle soup are among the most popular 100 per cent American dishes that the American kitchen serves.

DECLARE WAR ON SUMMER PERSPIRATION

Now is the time to leave the art there can be in using deodorants. There are so many kinds on the market. Don't just buy any one and think you have fixed yourself for the summer.

There is a new kind of deodorant, a lipstick form. It is white, creamy, and can be carried easily, being delicately scented and done up in smart little white container with black top.

Often you will find that the deodorant you use under your arms isn't at all the one you need for your feet. But there are some especially prepared for women whose feet perspire too freely in summer time, giving them cause for worry, both to themselves and friends.

There is no reason why any woman shouldn't have a dainty, fresh aroma about her in summer time, what with our American bath tuts and all the energy and brains that have gone into making products to aid and abet women. If you perspire too freely under the arms, there are several deodorants that help check this tendency.

It is healthy to perspire, don't worry about that. But it isn't pleasant to have too much perspiration in the arm pits. One of these deodorants will help you.

You can't be too careful about fresh clothing in summer time. A meticulous Boston woman once said, "If you are looking to see if yesterday's slip needs laundering, don't bother to look. Of course it does."

Daily fresh underthings, daily baths, and not all of them just showers, either, good deodorants, and a good body powder that has a deodorant quality. These are the first steps to that eternal freshness that every woman wants. They lead the way to daintiness, which is what every woman should have.

TIME—THE WHITEWASHER.

When Professor Herbert A. Miller remarked that Sir Francis Drake was a pirate "who should have been hanged" he was not simply trying to make a startling comment that would land on the front pages. He was testifying to something that is self-evident, if you stop to think about it—the fact that the romance and glamour which cluster about certain historical personages are usually put there chiefly by the passage of time.

Nothing looks quite the same at close range as it does a century or two later. In the days of Elizabeth, for example, there were plenty of people who felt precisely as Dr. Miller feels; the Spanish ambassador in London was himself to a frazzle trying to project that viewpoint on to Elizabeth herself, and a great number of Englishmen were ready to agree.

But today Drake is something more than an English national hero. He is one of the great adventurers the race has produced, with a name that evokes dreams, and we envy the men who sailed with him around the world.

For time has a way of white-washing things and people; and that, very likely, is why we look back to the "good old days" and complain that our times are out of joint. If we could go back, to any bright epoch we might choose, we should gain very little.

We should find Drake, as Dr. Miller says, something very like an out-and-out pirate. And the same would be true of the others whom the romantics love.

King Arthur's knights, if we could see them in the flesh, would very likely turn out to be a group of swaggering, uncouth roisterers from whom we would depart with relief. Christopher Columbus, greatest of admirals, quite clearly failed to impress very many of his associates with his splendid halo. The men who followed Cortez into Mexico would probably have said that it was a miserable job, sadly underpaid. Lee's army of northern Virginia—perhaps the most "romantic" group of soldiers ever seen—was really dreadfully ragged, frequently downright filthy, and in its off moments utterly unprepossessing to the casual observer.

And so it goes. Those bright human actions that men of all ages love to remember usually don't start to glitter until at least half a century has passed.

THE FARM BUREAU.

The Telegraph believes that the Lee County Farm Bureau is one of the best organizations ever formed in this community. It has done more to put farming on a business basis, to develop better methods of farming, to bring the farmer out of his isolation, and to encourage a coming generation of farmers and farmers' wives than all other factors combined.

The benefits of the organization are not limited to the members alone. Every farm and every farmer in the county receive indirect benefit in the general uplift of the business. The Farm Bureau could do much more if every farmer in the county were a member. Some farmers thoughtlessly speak disparagingly of the organization and discount its efforts. Those farmers are merely standing in their own light and hindering their own progress.

In these times it is not a question of "Can I afford to belong to the Farm Bureau?" but "Can I afford to stay out of it?"

"CANNED" SPEECHES.

The average citizen may be pardoned if he shudders just a trifle on receipt of the news that politicians are now preparing to have phonograph records made of political speeches, for dissemination over the radio during the approaching campaign.

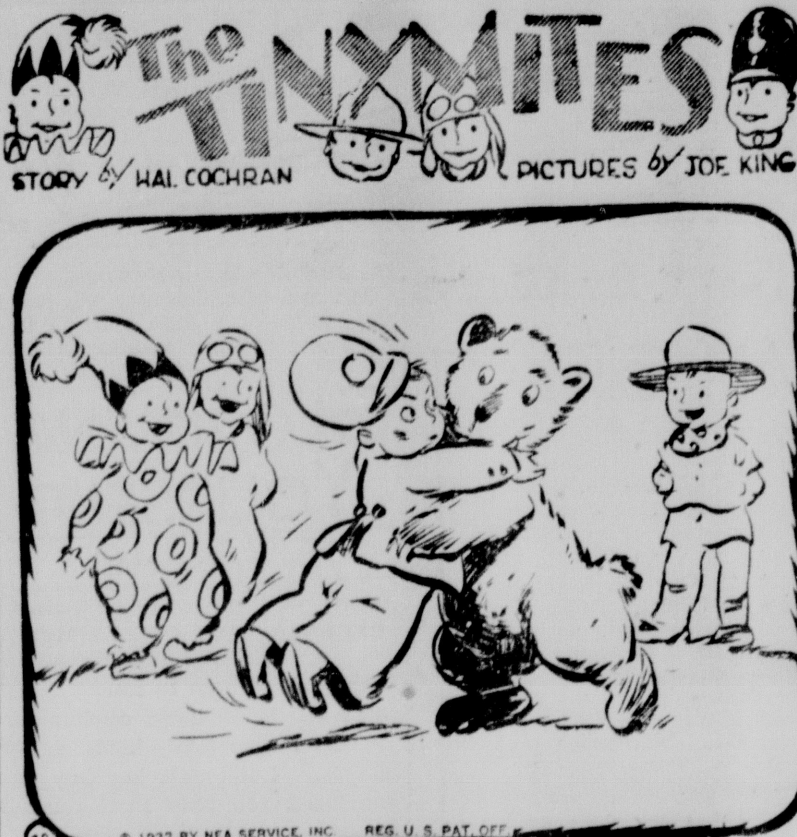

This news comes via the theatrical magazine Variety, which finds that Los Angeles politicians are already having such records made and that politicians in other parts of the country are expected to follow suit.

Getting the speeches of the candidates over the air is a fine thing, of course. It enables the candidate to reach a far wider percentage of the electorate than ever was possible before. But somehow, the thought of "canned" speeches being stored up for broadcasting purposes is dismaying. Campaign blarney is even harder to listen to when it comes out of a machine than when it proceeds from a flesh-and-blood thorax.

Under municipal government we have a political despotism, controlled by political organizations whose fixed purpose is to commercialize the processes of government.—Samuel Seabury, council for Hofstadter investigating committee, New York.

This is a time for bold proposals. The United States has encouraged us to believe it will cooperate in some of the wider problems and join in devising a policy for the encouragement of trade and the enrichment of nations.—Ramsay MacDonald, British premier.

In war days the value of the human body was estimated at about 98 cents, but I suppose, at present low prices, we are worth about 67 cents.—Dr. C. H. Mayo of Rochester, Minn.

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

The juggler's legs were very, very strong. Said he, "Now, nothing will go wrong. I've practiced years to do this stunt and now I know it well."

"Why, I have tossed big men in the air and given folks a treat that's rare. So thrilling has my act been that I've oft made people yell."

Then Duncy said, as best he could, "Don't worry! I'll admit you're good and I am having lots of fun. Just toss me higher, please."

"As long as I don't take a flop I really don't care when you stop." Then man then caught wee Duncy holding him real still, with ease.

"I'm going to make you do a turn. I am sure that you will quickly learn just how to help me swing you around," he told the little lad.

"You may get dizzy for a bit, but soon you will get used to it. I have a hunch it will be the biggest thrill you've ever had."

The other Tines stood nearby and every one just seemed to sigh as Duncy turned a somersault and landed safe and sound.

This happened several times and then the Tines started clapping when the man tossed Duncy out and let him land upon the ground.

The clapping made the lad feel proud, and, turning to the little crowd, he said, "Hey, Cappy it is your turn. You're clever as can be."

"I saw a cub bear right nearby and, if they'll yet you, you should try to wrestle with the fellow. What a sight we all will see."

The little cub bear was brought out and he was tame, there was no doubt. The keeper said to Cappy, "Go ahead and try your luck."

"The little bear won't bite and, though he is strong, I'm sure that nothing will go wrong. Show all the other Tines that you have a heap of pluck."

The Tines have a lot of fun with a clown in the next story.

Ogle Co. Farm Bureau Affairs

WHY THE FARM BUREAU
By C. E. Bamforth, Polo,
Rep. of 13th District on
I. A. A. Board.

The story of the Farm Bureau cannot be told in a moment for there are so many ways in which it has benefited the farmer through its county, state and national organizations.

Through its influence 40 bills have been put through the state legislature saving the tax payers of Illinois thousands of dollars and numerous bills have been defeated that would have been detrimental to Illinois farmers.

The Farm Bureau tax program for 1931 resulted in $1,500,000 being cut from farm valuations. Farm property will pay about $6,000,000 less in all taxes on the 1931 valuations than it would have paid if assessments had remained the same as in 1920. This amounts to $33 on each of the 214,000 farms in Illinois.

Through the Farm Bureau insurance program with $45,000,000 of life insurance and 30,000 automobile insurance policies in force, thousands of dollars have been saved the members in this state. In Ogle County alone during the past year the saving on cost of insurance has been $7000.

During the past year Ogle County members have saved $1500 in the purchase of serum and virus and $4,000 in petroleum products.

The transportation department has secured a saving of $30,000 on freight on limestone for Illinois farmers and in the reduction of rates on mixed shipments of live stock a saving of $270,000.

In one instance our legal and transportation departments secured settlement for right of way for an electric high line through Ogle, Lee and Stephenson counties saving the farmers of these counties $7,000.

The Association also represented farmers of Illinois in a pipe line easement case adding $350,000 to the amount they would otherwise have received.

Through cooperation with the State University educational projects are carried on such as soil improvement, seed selection, balancing rations for live stock, live stock sanitation, poultry management, farm account records, 4-H Club work and many other services to reduce costs of production and bring larger income and greater satisfaction in farm life.

When Huey Long Scored for Roosevelt

The Roosevelt forces at Chicago won their first skirmish when Senator Huey Long of Louisiana succeeded in seating 20 pro-Roosevelt delegates from his state whose election had been contested as illegal. Here is the scene as "The Kingfish" addressed the convention in their behalf shortly before the assemblage voted, 638 to 514 to accept the delegation.

Properly organized agriculture may go even farther than industry inasmuch as farm commodities are consumed every day and several times a day if we are to live.

In such times as these it is not a question of "Can I afford to belong to the Farm Organization?" but, "Can I afford to stay out of it?" and further impede a program of prosperity.

John E. Myers, Pres.
Ogle County Farm Bureau.

STATEMENT BY COUNTY FARM BUREAU PRESIDENT
Fully recognizing the fact that Agriculture is in distress and because of which the whole nation is now suffering, there seems only one solution for agriculture—that it become better organized—and since it is generally recognized that prosperity for America must begin on the farm, we must stand shoulder to shoulder, town and country, upon a sound economic basis and press forward for the uplift of American Agriculture through organization.

Unorganized farmers constitute the greatest obstacle in delaying adequate solution to many of our problems. A well organized agriculture would and would have wielded greater influence in the councils of both state and nation and agriculture would not have been forced into such a long period of deflation.

front to put down rioting. Czechoslovakia forces in Siberia continued their advance and were in virtual command of the vast country between Vladivostok on the Pacific and the Ural mountains, which separate Europe from Asia. American forces made a successful trench raid on German positions near Montdidier, taking several prisoners. German attacks on French lines at Ambleny were beaten off after heavy fighting. Officials of the allied general council said that the balance of power on all fronts had passed into allied hands, and predicted allied successes for the remainder of the year.

"Light One for ME"

It's pretty hard to be around a Chesterfield and not want one. That tempting aroma tells you the truth. It says... "Here's a milder cigarette. Here's one that tastes better."

Sure... there's a good reason. Several, in fact. Chesterfields contain the finest tobaccos grown.

These tobaccos are not only blended, they're cross-blended in Chesterfield's own special way.

They are rolled in the purest paper that money can buy. Grown right. Cured right. Blended right. Made right. Packed right. That's Chesterfield.

In fact, there isn't any way for a cigarette to be purer, milder or better tasting.

No wonder so many millions of smokers say "THEY SATISFY."

TOMORROW TO BE MISSIONS DAY AT PARK

Bible Conference Now Is Arousing Greater
Interest Here

(By Conference Reporter)
At the afternoon gathering of the Rock River Bible conference yesterday, the Rev. O. D. Shaffer, of Grace Evangelical church, presided and Dr. Sutherland spoke on "God's Supreme Gift," basing his talk on Romans 3:19-26. He said the first thing is our need of redemption. Why do we need redemption? Because put us all into the same crowd, there is no difference. He illustrated that by telling us that if it required two dollars to enter a great concert and I have only $1.65 and my friend has only three cents, neither of us are able to enter the concert but some mutual friend comes along and offers us a gift of tickets and that gift puts us on the same level, if we accept. The second point was God's provision for redemption at the mercy seat, the cherubim at the flaming executioners of God's judgments, inside the ark was the Ten Commandments for the mercy seat rests upon law, but the sprinkled blood shows that judgment has already been given. He illustrated this by the beautiful story of the substitution of Simeon for Charley Darny in Dickens' "Tale of Two Cities." His third point was the possession of redemption, the law was given to us to teach us how bad we are, that every mouth might be stopped. We are not saved by being good, but because we are sinners. There is no such thing as a pardoned sinner because of Calvary's Cross. God looks upon us as though we had never sinned. We were all delighted to see our popular evangelist, Rev. Grady Cantrell, who spoke a few words.

Dr. Holmes spoke on "Crosses and Crowns." He said: "There are two ways of reaching the ideal of Jesus Christ, immediately and mediately. Aristotle was correct when he said 'All truth comes to mankind by revelation.' Sometimes in the form of ecstasy or ineffable bliss and sometimes by miracles. The earth swinging around in space and the moon around the earth is a perpetual miracle. Recently at Schenectady a bar of iron was held in the air for a long time by magnetism and the workman who made it possible said, 'God did it.' Sometimes God speaks to us by signs like the Macedonian vision of Paul or by Balaam's ass who spoke. Someone asked a college professor what language the ass spoke and he said, 'It spoke Hebrew.' 'How do you know?' 'Wasn't he a bravest? God speaks in everybody but there is always the danger of a false interpretation. We are higher than the animal which is governed by blind instinct, for we have memory, imagination and reason. Every person is absolutely unique and different but the person who lives on the animal plane is minimizing human reason, we must test all our brains by the Bible that is the Protestant's final Court of Appeal. When a child has a cerebral meningitis there is a scarred tissue left on the brain during life but when God saves the soul in the forgiveness of sins He leaves no scars upon the soul. Tonight Dr. Sutherland spoke on the 'Perfections of the Lord Jesus Christ.'

Rev. James W. Gillespie of Auburn presided. Miss Helen Finney and Miss Mamie Schiefelbusch sang a duet and the orchestra under the leadership of Mr. Wilson and the choir under the leadership of Elmer Rice and Mrs. Elmer Rice, with Clinton Fahrney at the piano led the music. Dr. Sutherland said he wanted to talk about Jesus being better than Moses, even as the builder is better than the house or as the son is better than the servant. Jesus is a saviour, as a leader, a lawgiver, judge, prophet and ruler. Dr. Holmes spoke on "Peace of Passivity." He says there are levels of social, intellectual

LOCAL STORE ANNOUNCES ITS FIRST SALE

Russell Byers, manager, the Miller-Jones Family Shoe store at 109 First street, announces elsewhere in this paper the first general sale in the history of the company, with special prices on hosiery and footwear for every one.

This company, which owns and operates its own modern factories, has built an enviable reputation in this community with its high quality merchandise, square dealing and consistently low prices. The low prices are made possible by efficient control of manufacturing, merchandising and distribution methods — the elimination of jobber and wholesaler in the saving passed on to the buying public.

The Miller-Jones policy is against sales except when they are absolutely necessary and based upon actual merchandising truths. Conditions this year have caused many well-laid plans to go astray. Retarded buying has failed to clear shelves fast enough — new stocks are already made up and will be in shortly — distress merchandise of unknown quality has blocked the ordinary "outlet" channels of all large operators, so the Miller-Jones stores will be their own "outlet" for surplus stocks, which virtually means wholesale prices for retail buyers, according to Manager Russell Byers.

Tomorrow, the opening day of this sale, the first 100 women to enter the store will be given absolutely free and without obligation an attractive and useful Dutch Oven. These ovens are full 10-inch size, made of 20-gauge auto body steel, self-basting and just the thing for hot weather cooking.

Look for the big ad in today's Telegraph and for the ads in editions to follow, for the ridiculously low prices on shoes and hosiery for the entire family during this big 10-day sale.

"Alfalfa Bill" Makes His Own Boom!

Beats the band, doesn't it, the way some of these presidential aspirants go about drumming up votes for themselves? Here's Gov. "Alfalfa Bill" Murray, of Oklahoma, trying out the bass drum that a girls' kilties band of Oklahoma City brought to Chicago to aid in the governor's boom for the Democratic nomination.

tual and religious life, the preamist is ruled by the power of taboo. The polytheist is ruled by many gods and is self-satisfied. "Oh, that a man might arise in me that the man I am cease to be," says Tennyson. The biggest danger is that of divided personality. There is no value in remorse about sin, you must be humbled before God and be satisfied to be a part of him or you will wreck your life.

Missionary Day
The services will begin at 10:30 on Missionary Day. The chairman in the morning will be Rev. L. E. Conner of the Church of God. The speakers will be: Mrs. Clarence Heckman of Africa; Miss A. E. Stanford of India and the Rev. J. D. Montgomery of South America.

GOVERNMENT TO CLOSE DARKEST FINANCIAL ERA

Uncle Sam To Write
Deficit Of Nearly Two Billions

Washington, June 29 (AP)—One day more, and the closing entry of the darkest financial chapter of this, or any other peacetime nation, will be written in red.

When the clock strikes 12 tomorrow night the United States will close its fiscal year, wipe its slate clean and embark on a brand new period with additional revenue-producing machinery, together with an auxiliary economic program, which promises to produce sufficient income to keep the Treasury in order.

The books for the year will be closed with about $1,900,000,000 on the wrong side of the ledger. Today the deficit was $2,837,644,914 as of June 25, last year it was $902,716,000. The year before a $183,000,000 surplus was established and then ended eleven consecutive years of profitable operations.

The fiscal year 1933 will be different, however, government officials aver. With the new revenue bill of 1932 as the spearhead, there is expected to accrue $3,261,000,000 in taxes, a sum sufficient, says President Hoover, "impregably to establish the credit of the Federal government."

ONLY TWO MEN HELD BY BAND CHINESE THUGS

Three American Women,
Five Children, Are Given Liberty

Hankow, China, June 29 (AP)—Three American women and five children who were kidnapped by bandits near Kikungshan, in southern Honan province, last Sunday, were released today, reports from there said.

The report said the bandits were holding the two men kidnapped at the same time. The men are fathers of four of the children and husbands of two of the women. They are D. W. Vikner, Mead, Nebraska, attached to the Augustana Synod Mission with headquarters at St. Peters, Minn., and A. E. Nyhus, Fertile, Iowa, of the Lutheran Brethren Church Mission, with headquarters at Grand Forks, N. D.

The eight reported released are: Mrs. Vikner and three children, Mrs. Erik Sovik and son, Northfield, Minn., of the Lutheran United Mission with headquarters at Minnesota, and Mrs. Nyhus and baby.

Peiping June 29 (AP)—United States Consul General Walter Adams at Hankow reported to the American legation here today that all the Americans kidnapped by Chinese near Kikungshan Sunday were released, except Rev. D. W. Vikner and Rev. A. E. Nyhus, who were being held by the kidnappers as hostages.

The women and children were safe, either at Hankow or Shekow, he said.

The Consul's list included the name of Rev. H. W. K. Sandy of the British Wesleyan Mission. The legation made representations to the national government at Nanking and also to the provincial authorities over the affair.

It was powered by a two-cylinder midge gasoline motor and flew under set control. It flew a distance of several hundred yards. Its wing spread was 10 feet, and its tiny gasoline tank carried one pint.

WOODCOCK SAYS ROCKEFELLER'S "MISINFORMED"

Federal Director Of Prohibition Writes
Sen. Sheppard

Washington, June 29 (AP)—Amos W. W. Woodcock, Prohibition Director, disagrees with the premises on which John D. Rockefeller Jr. criticizes and advocates repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

In a letter that appeared in today's Congressional Record, the chief of federal prohibition forces held it was obvious that Rockefeller "has based his conclusions to some extent upon misinformation."

Woodcock's letter, written to Senator Sheppard (D. Texas), co-author of the eighteenth amendment, said: "Mr. Rockefeller states that drunkenness generally has increased. This is a very general statement and by no means definite. It is not stated whether drinking has increased this year, last year, or in the past ten years, or whether there is more drinking now than before prohibition."

Surveys in New York and Detroit prove "the direct opposite" of statements that speakases have replaced saloons unit for unit. It is difficult to analyze a "general statement" that the illegal sale of liquor supports "a vast army of lawbreakers."

"It may be and possibly is true in some limited instances" that otherwise law-abiding citizens openly disregard the eighteenth amendment because of pique at what they feel an infringement of their private rights.

"It would take a volume to analyze the crime situation in the United States in a study of whether prohibition has brought an increase in law-breaking."

Los Angeles, June 29 (AP)—David Hutton, the round choir singer and husband of evangelist Myrtle St. Pierre, was to take the stand today to deny he was the fiery lover pictured by Myrtle Joan St. Pierre. She is suing him for $200,000 for alleged breach of promise.

The defense, opening its case yesterday, has a few more witnesses to summon today to lay the groundwork for its case by representing the 30-year-old, twice married nurse as "a woman with a

Sidelights In News In Capital Of United States

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

Chicago, June 29 — Held 12 long years from the feed box and as intent as ever on mutual massacre, the Democrats are still the only boys and girls who act as if they really found a lot of fun in the great game of politics.

The care-free spontaneity of the crowd now meeting in Chicago is never subdued by the vicious some times fatal internal brawls such as the one in progress. Most of the 2000 or 3000 delegates and alternates doubtless would feel swindled if everything were sweet and pretty. They want thrills and so does the public. What good is a convention without a few fights?

Holding tenacious to the federal jobs, as Republicans must, seems a grim, humorless business compared with the joyous sport of trying to wrest them away. Fear of a defeat and loss creates a sour brooding like whereas perennial hope has an effect quite opposite.

The boastful, flamboyant, ro-coco signs of the presidential candidates at the Congress Hotel are the first distinguishing touches. Bright colors and wise cracks and features, Democrats, male and female, mill around incessantly, basing from place to place, from headquarters to headquarters. An "old home week" is going on in every candidate's rooms. People sit, stand, jabber and crowd each other as if at a cocktail—animated and happy. A man in the hall barks: "Walk right in and meet Senator Reed. You will find him smiling."

A flying wedge of women plows through demanding to see Alfalfa Bill. They'll find him draped over his bed, with his shoes off, but well worth seeing. Bill's girl, band, 30 lovely, shapely lassies in kits and sporrans, is likely to be playing under his window on the busy Michigan bldg. Their pretty, dimpled knees attract plenty of attention. Imagine a band of bare-legged girls at a Republican convention!

Watch these Democrats in the convention hall and you will get the point. Delegates are jammed tight because so many insisted on coming, even if only with fractional votes. And unruly! It's a fearful job to get them all to sit down and be quiet. The officers have to beat the drums and finally send sergeants-at-arms through the floor to obtain order. It takes a long time.

And how they demonstrate. They are born paraders and noise-makers. Any one of a dozen dead Democrats can draw louder, more prolonged, unplanned applause at this convention than Herbert Hoover at six Republican conventions. Thus far there have been more empty seats in the galleries than in Chicago's previous political circus, but the visiting Democrats need no galleries to help 'em out. The theory is that memory of Sen. Dickinson's Republican keynote speech kept the crowd away the first day, but the crowd down may have been passed out on Senator Barkley's.

They yell and gesticulate, waving their arms. If a waving arm happens to hit another Democrat in the eye that just proves you're a good Democrat. During the repeal parade, which is a woe of a demonstration, the Texas delegation stages a fierce internal fight in which the wets fail to get the state's standard into the line of march. Do the wets all stand then panting and sweating? Instead, they pencil "Texas" on a little piece of paper and brandishing it aloft, join the great procession.

Democratic capacity for punishment suggests the dilating powers of a great boa. They eat it up and love it. First they sign up Evan-geline Booth for the longest, most emotional prayer ever uttered at a secular meeting of any kind. They let Mayor Cermak set another endurance record in a well-coming speech, cheering him all the time. They make Isidore Dockweiler, of California, read Thomas Jefferson's long-winded inaugural address. And whereas the Republicans have much to explain, Democrats who have much to explain, only used 500 words for the keynote speech. The Democrats raised the bid to 10,000 and drag it out by fervent demonstrations for Jefferson, Jackson, Cleveland and Wilson. Democrats are like that. I've seen a thousand of them sit until 2:30 in the morning listening to speeches, getting hotter, happier and more excited by the hour.

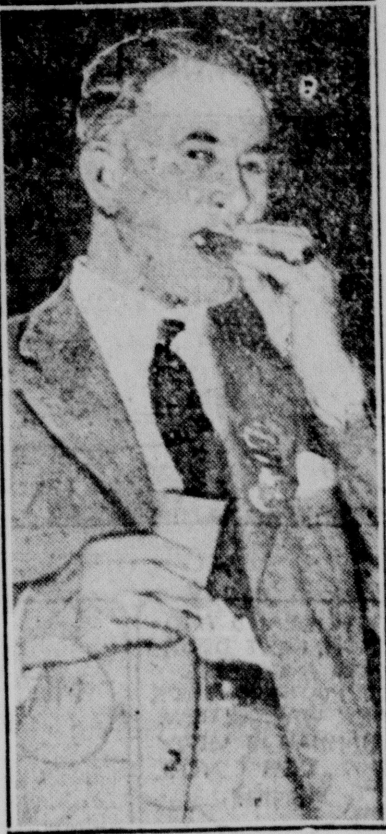

At night, instead of going to bed as Republicans would, they fight at caucuses, mill around the hotels gather for corn liquor or Scotch highball parties, buzz each other for the latest dope on what the bosses are thinking, listen to estimates of Roosevelt's and anti-Roosevelt strength, which will be proved conclusively in the morning and eventually retire to dream of roaming again in the patronage orchard now controlled by the rascally Republicans.

U. S. W. V. Veteran Dies At Convention

Bellville, Ill., June 28 —(AP)—Edward D. McLaughlin, 55, Commander of the John A. Logan, Jr. Camp No. 17, Spanish War Veterans of Danville, was found dead in a room at a hotel here last midnight. He was here to attend the annual state encampment. Police officers, summoned by the hotel operators who said McLaughlin had not left his room all day Monday, forced their way into his room. They said they found among his possessions four bottles of a poisonous liquid, two of which were half emptied. McLaughlin registered shortly after midnight Sunday night and was believed to have been dead several hours when found. He resided at the Soldiers' and Sailors' Home at Danville.

The Chairman Takes Time Out For Lunch

Battles over the seating of contested delegations dragged on for long and weary hours at the second session of the Democratic convention, but Senator Alben W. Barkley, the temporary chairman, didn't miss his lunch. This intimate snap shot shows Chairman Barkley enjoying a sandwich and a paper cup of coffee on the convention platform while the debate was at its height.

OUR FIRST SALE

NEVER before have we had a general sale in Miller-Jones stores. Our policy is against sales—except when they are absolutely necessary and based upon actual merchandising truths. Conditions have caused many well-laid plans to go astray this year. Retarded buying has failed to clear shelves fast

TRAYLOR WILL GET MAJORITY ILLINOIS VOTE

How the State Delegation Will Vote On Wet Plank Unknown

By R. H. HIPPLEHEUSER Associated Press Staff Writer

Chicago, June 29.—(AP)—This was the day of rumors and speculation in the Democratic national convention.

On every hand, this was the query: "Did Roosevelt garner enough strength overnight, after his victories of yesterday, to secure the nomination?"

But as far as Illinois was concerned, with the nominating speeches but a few hours away, it was still Melvin Traylor.

Mayon Anton Cermak of Chicago, leader of the Traylor forces in the delegation, was non-committal on the votes he could muster for the co-founder of the Bank of International Settlements.

But the tests of Roosevelt's strength on the floor yesterday, particularly on the permanent chairmanship fight between Senator Walsh and J. P. Shouse, gave the Cermak forces an assurance of three-fourths of Illinois' 58 votes.

Just as non-committal was V. V. Dallman, Springfield editor and floor man for the Roosevelt delegates. In the Walsh-Shouse scrimmage, the Roosevelt supporters gathered 16 votes.

Conferred Last Night

The Traylor forces conferred again last night, but the topic of conversation remained a mystery. Neither Frank Seefeld, the Texas rancher and campaign manager, nor Col. R. G. Dunham, Traylor's "floor leader," provided any solution.

The Chicagoan reiterated to his friends that he would under no circumstances accept the vice presidency. Should the presidential nomination come to him, Traylor, it was believed, would resign at once the presidency of the First National Bank.

The largest order of today's business was the adoption of the platform, and the plank of most interest dealt with prohibition.

The wet forces, marshalled by Michael Igou, rules committeeman for Illinois, predicted victory on the convention floor regardless of the committee's action.

There has been no Illinois caucus since last Sunday night and the delegation is not polled until just before a vote, so the definite strength for repeal in Illinois remained unknown.

But a large majority, at least, were inclined toward out-right repeal instead of a plank for rebusmission of the question.

East Inlet—A. H. Hill was a business caller in Amboy Friday afternoon.

Gertrude Clark, R. N. Carl and Gus Hetterman of Joliet spent the week end at the home of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Clarke.

Mrs. C. H. Clarke left Wednesday from Dixon by train for Aurora, South Dakota, where she will visit her son Martin.

she wore a shabby pair of shoes because they were comfortable.

It was hard work ironing. She had finished three shirts and her shoulder ached but the pile of ironed garments was only half exhausted. Cherry knew she was not skilful at ironing. She was slow at it and none of the things looked quite as they should. It meant a saving of more than a dollar a week though to have the laundry delivered "rough dried."

They are married and for the first time Cherry finds what it means to lack money. Her struggles with housework are discouraging. Dixie Shannon, movie critic of the News, is friendly with Cherry. She meets handsome MAX PEARSON who also works on the News.

Cherry receives a letter from her mother enclosing a check for $500. She returns the check because pride will not let her keep it. Dan, worried about bills, undertakes to write a short story but becomes discouraged and leaves it unfinished.

Two days later Cherry learns her mother is critically ill. Cherry goes home and at her mother's bedside the father and daughter are reconciled. Mrs. Dixon passes the crisis of her illness but, as time passes, does not recuperate properly. The doctor prescribes several months at the seashore. Cherry's father asks her to go with her mother but she refuses. Mr. Dixon decides to go himself. Cherry sees her parents off at the railroad station.

Dan becomes discouraged when a story he has sent to a magazine is returned.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXXI

THE heat wave came. It arrived with scorching sun and days that seemed breathless from early morning until late at night. There was no breeze. Grass scorched in the parks where men and women and children, finding their lodgings unbearable, spread newspapers and slept on the ground. There was no rain—nothing to break the relentless succession of sultry days.

Dan was working longer hours. The vacation schedule was in force and the staff was short several men.

The heat wave began the second week in July. The third week came and it had not diminished. The fourth week opened and still there was no rain, no breeze, no sign of cooler weather.

Cherry seemed to wilt. She tried to keep the apartment in order, to offer Dan cool, appetizing meals but the strain began to tell on her. She grew paler than usual and her eyes were dark circled.

Letters came from her mother describing the seashore resort. Mrs. Dixon was feeling stronger. The sea air was invigorating and the hotel had proved to be a quiet, comfortable place.

It was during the third week of the heat wave that Cherry, driven by the fact that laundry bills had been mounting higher and higher, began over the ironing board before the two open windows of the living room and tried to give Dan's shirt the same smooth finish the laundry gave it.

The door leading into the hall stood open. Cherry was dressed in a recent purchase, a 95 cent apron that served as a dress. Her hair was pushed back from her face and screwed in a knot. Her face was guiltless of powder or make-up and

"It's going to take my last cent," Dixie admitted matter-of-factly. "I've bought a new evening dress—white lace, don't you think that's pretty?"—and a white skirt with a blue flannel jacket and a printed chiffon that will do for afternoon or evening. Wait, I'll show you—"

The new gowns were unwrapped and displayed hastily. Dixie held the white evening dress up for Cherry to admire, explaining that it really had been a wonderful bargain. Fifty-nine fifty reduced to $25.

Cherry looked down at her flimsy apron, her worn-out shoes. She pushed the hair back from her forehead. What a sight she must be!

"I'll have to go on with this ironing," she said as she arose. "But don't go. Stay and tell me about your trip."

"No, it's time for me to be getting upstairs. I've a million things to do. Cherry, how on earth can you iron when it's so hot as this?"

"Dan needs the shirts," Cherry explained. "He put on the last clean one in the drawer this morning. Besides I don't seem to feel the heat any more when I'm busy than when I'm doing nothing."

"Well, there isn't a man living I'd iron shirts for today! I'll drop in again before I go. See you later."

"Thanks for the shirt," Cherry called as the other girl disappeared. Dixie's answer was lost as she mounted the stairs.

UP and down the ironing board, up and down, Cherry's hand moved. The shirt sleeves, then the collar and then the front. A button off here. That must be sewed on before the shirt was folded away.

She wiped the perspiration from her forehead, laid another shirt on the board. As the iron moved back and forth her thoughts flew to the cool white deck of a ship. Not such a ship as Dixie would sail on—an ocean liner, huge and majestic. Cherry could see white foam splashing against the blue. Gulls gliding to the surface of the water and then soaring aloft. Oh, to be on such a ship! To feel the rush of the cold wind!

With a sudden cry she put the iron on its stand. There on the sleeve of one of Dan's newest shirts was a yellow-brown scorched spot.

It was after six when Dan arrived. Cherry was putting away the last of the ironing. She had not had time to dress.

"This place is like an oven," Dan announced. "We can't eat here."

"You go somewhere if you want to," Cherry told him. "I don't feel like dressing and anyhow I'm not hungry."

"Do you good to get out. Honestly, it's smothering in here!"

Cherry protested but Dan had his way. They dined at a restaurant in the neighborhood where electric fans kept the hot air in motion. There was an odor of cooking about the place that was not appetizing

Girls Who Go Down To The Sea in Chic—

By JOAN SAVOY

NEA Service Wirtler

Any day will be a holiday if you go down to the sea in the newest, gayest pajamas. There is something colorful and sparkling about them that makes you relax at the same time that you take a new interest in the passing show by the water's edge.

For chic combined with comfort, there is a pair of bright-red knitted pajamas which are cut and fitted around the top like a bathing suit. The red gives way to blue knitted wool in the middle of the bust, and the cooler color runs up and over the shoulder. The legs are loose and comfortable, and perfect relaxation is possible.

The girl who is lounging in the beach chair is wearing this costume.

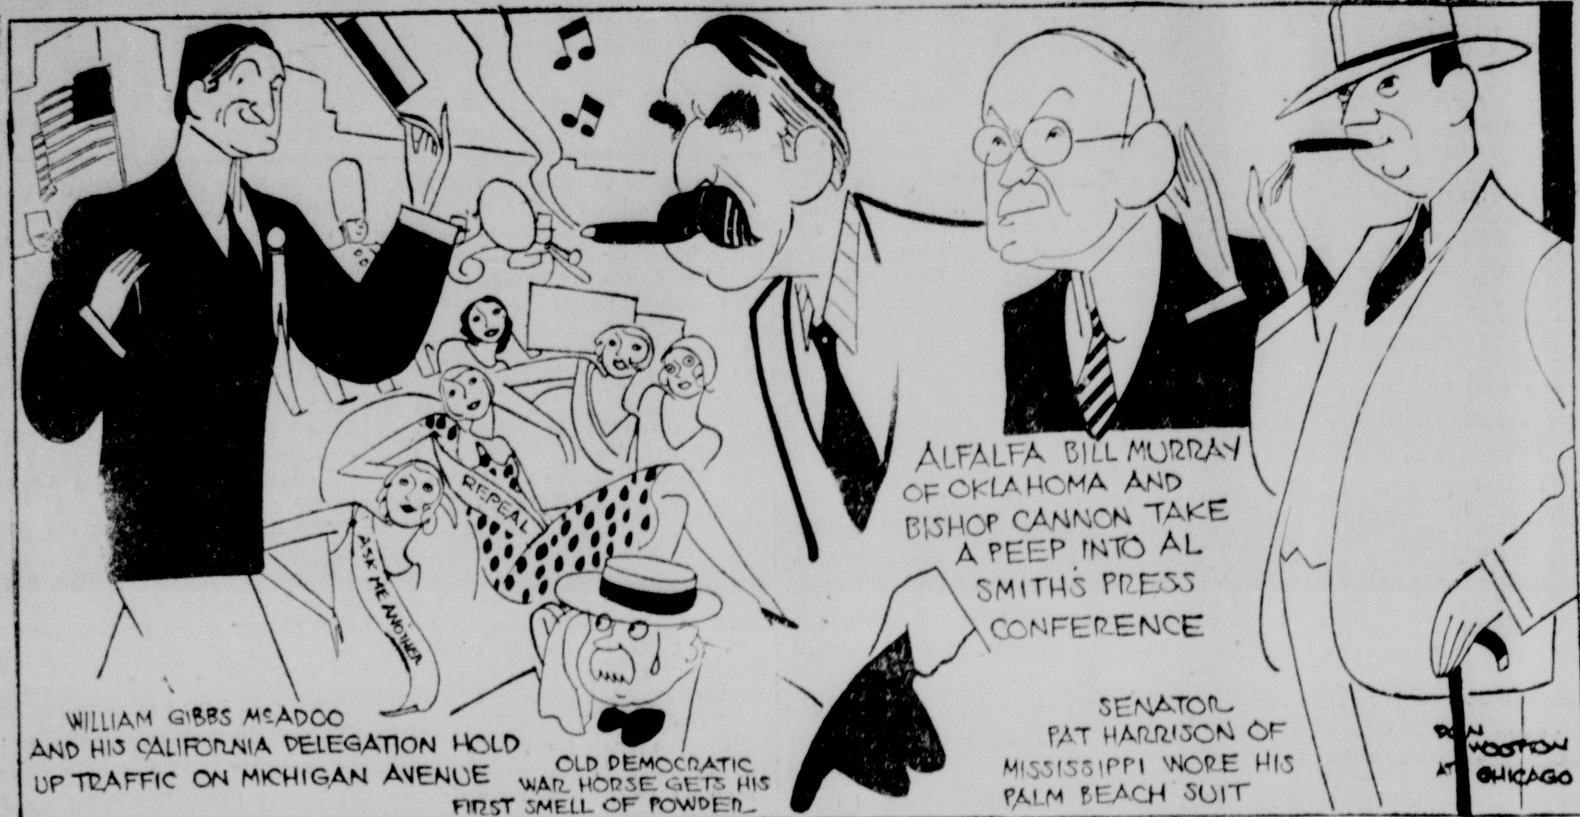

Two-piece striped jerseys, worn by the girl who is standing, add a lively note to any fashion group. The stripes are red, yellow, black and white. A large bow is sewn in place right in the center of the front, at the waistline, and the belt hooks under it. Small patch pockets decorate the breasts.

A great, drooping sun hat will protect your eyes when the sands are too yellow and the water is too blue. When a boat comes sailing by all you have to do is raise your hat and the slant of the brim will let your eyes see and be seen.</

HOW THEY LOOK IN CARICATURE—

—Sketched on Scene by Don Wootton

A BOOK A DAY

SLAVES HEART OUT SO HE CAN LEARN TO PAINT

Ordinarily, when you find a novelist going stream-of-consciousness on you, you are quite safe in shutting him off and going out to a movie. However, in the novel "Beauty Lies Beyond Hell," by Howard W. Roper, this rule fails to apply. The book has a tortured, irritating style, but there's solid nourishment in it.

It is a story about a city lad in his middle teens. He wants to be an artist, and to do that he has to go to art school. He is an orphan and he has no money, so he has to slave away at a series of poorly-paid odd jobs to put himself through school.

The story covers just one year in his life, and it leaves him in much the same situation as he occupied when the story began; but some how, simple as it is, it tells you something — tells you something about the disinherited, and their struggle for a little bit more than daily bread, and the tantalizing dreams that come to them, and the pathetic ways in which they try to make them come true.

This lad works—in a dance hall, in a chemical factory, in a store. He meets girls, loves them, loses them; they move away, or they fall ill and die, or better men come along and take them away. And all the time he keeps his eye on his great ambition, and tries to fight through to the beauty which he has glimpsed.

It makes a moving story. You'll find it a bit hard to read, maybe, but it's worth the effort. Mr. Roper is sincere and he understands things.

St. Louis—The growing popularity of aviation is witnessed here in the report that more than 750,000 persons visited the Lambert-St. Louis Municipal Airport during the fiscal year ending April 12. Sightseeing planes carried more than 20,000 of these visitors aloft on paid trips.

F. I. CARRUTHERS, ADVERTISING MANAGER OF THE DENVER POST, SAYS:

"In these days of reduced incomes the shrewd shopper is solicited by the knowledge that never in a decade has the dollar had such a buying power as today.

"In the fight for volume of business the merchants are meeting conditions with wonderful bargains daily, as manufacturers and jobbers have shown a disposition to turn out the merchandise at a negligible profit in order to keep the mills going.

"This means over-night plans for sales which can only be featured in the newspapers for quick action. As competition increases, the need of the immediate turnover is apparent and the newspaper is always ready to do the almost impossible in the matter of good set-ups on an hour's notice.

"When the offerings are right, the shopper finds the money and volume is maintained.

"Never was newspaper advertising more carefully read than now, and never more carefully prepared by the advertisers who realize that the utmost in value shall be given in price, quality, and style."

DAILY HEALTH

TREATING THE PATIENT

Sir William Osler and virtually all modern medical authorities have pointed out constantly the need of treating the patient rather than his disease.

This is particularly necessary when the individual suffers a chronic disease or a disease of long duration, such as tuberculosis.

The problem of treatment, however, is as much the concern of the patient's relatives and friends as it is of the doctor.

The progress the patient makes is not solely dependent upon the medicines he receives, but also on his own attitude toward his disease.

This phase of treatment is in substance psychotherapy. In certain organic disease conditions, psychotherapy is of paramount importance. Such is certainly the case in tuberculosis, in exophthalmic goiter and to a lesser degree in epilepsy.

In tuberculosis we find the patient reacting in a variety of ways, and his reactions may vary from time to time and in different stages of his disease.

Some are unduly meticulous in the conduct of their cure. Trivial symptoms give rise to excessive concern.

Such patients need to be reassured and the reassurance must be forthcoming not only from the doctor, but from their associates as well.

Others over-compensate in their reactions. They want to prove to themselves and to the world that they can "bully" their way through the disease.

They will make a virtue of pooh-poohing the warnings of their physician and of violating his instructions.

Still other patients become convinced of the fatal outcome of their disease and assume an unwarranted attitude of resignation.

These are but a few of the different types of reactions that we see in patients. Each of these is undesirable and much good can be rendered the patient by tactful psychological support.
